Ike Defends Power Estimates-No Missile Gap

Bars Reprisals
Against Cubans

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower laid down Tuesday a policy of no intervention and no reprisals at this time against Cuba despite what he called Communist intrigues and unwarranted attacks on the United States by Fidel Castro.

But Eisenhower left the way open for a tougher stand and specific action later on, if he sees a need. And, in what amounted to a solid rebuke of Castro as diplomatic language goes, he drew a distinct line between the Cuban Prime Minister and the Cuban people.

The President spoke of a continuing great affection of the American people for the Cuban people—but he had no kind words for Castro.

At a presidential news conference, Cuba was the top topic. It was the subject, too, of a formal presidential restatement of U.S. policy handed to newsmen as they left the conference room.

The policy statement wound up going further in a single sentence than the administration ever has before in spelling out a belief among Eisenhower advisers that some Cuban leaders sympathize with communism and embrace its views.

"I should like only to add," Eisenhower said, "that the United States government has confidence in the ability of the Cuban people to recognize and defeat the intrigues of international communism which are aimed at destroying democratic institutions in Cuba and the traditional and mutually beneficial friendship between the Cuban and American peoples."

Speaking informally, in his question and answer session with newsmen, the chief executive said "the American people still have the greatest affection and the greatest interest in the Cuban people."

"We are not going to be a party to reprisals or anything of that kind," he added. "At this moment it is not our time to do it, and certainly we are not going to intervene in their internal affairs."

Eisenhower voiced a hope that differences between the two governments can be worked out through diplomatic negotiations or other appropriate international procedures.

The President's position on Cuba was set out following two days of conferences among Eisenhower, Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and the U.S. ambassador to Cuba, Philip W. Bonsal.

Eisenhower said all three have been deeply concerned for many months at a steady deterioration of relations with Cuba, as reflected especially in recent statements by Castro and his government. He said these contained "unwarranted attacks on our government and on our leading officials." Eisenhower termed such charges totally unfounded.

Solons Give
Consideration
To Items

HARRISBURG (AP) — During yesterday's meeting of the State Legislature, the group had solutions to some matters and held others for future consideration.

Some of the matters on which information was received were:

Highway Budget—The House Democratic majority defeated a Republican proposal that the highways department be tied to an annual budget, rather than being given blanket authorization to spend out of the Motor License Fund as has been the practice for years.

Constitutional Amendments — Rep. Edwin W. Tompkins (R-Cameron), a member of the 1958-59 Constitutional Revision Commission, proposed eight changes in a package of House bills.

Legislation — Four administration-backed bills making technical changes in the budget and giving Gov. David L. Lawrence authority to transfer for the relief payments up to 10 million dollars from other appropriations were moved into position for a final vote when the House returns next Monday.

Confirmations — The Senate confirmed members of two new state agencies — the Harness Racing Commission and the Board of Motion Picture Control. It also gave preliminary approval to the appointment of William F. O'Hara of Scranton to the Public Utility Commission. Final confirmation of O'Hara is expected next week.

Goddard Tells Of Proposals
On New Dam

MAURICE K. Goddard, state secretary of forests and waters, yesterday advised residents of the Bushkill area to "go on living" as if Tock's Island dam and reservoir had never been proposed. At the same time, he said "with all certainty possible" the dam will be built.

Goddard, in a letter to The Daily Record, took issue with a letter from the Tock's Island Property Owners Assn. which appeared in this newspaper recently, although he admitted the letter expresses "some legitimate concern on the part of the residents of Bushkill about their future."

Goddard said there appears to be a misunderstanding as to the timetable for construction of the dam and acquisition of and payment for needed lands.

The text of his letter: "It has come to my attention that a letter from the Tock's Island Property Owners Association appeared this week in the Daily Record. I understand that the questions raised in this letter are identical with those in letters sent to members of Congress, to the Corps of Engineers, and to myself. The letter expresses some legitimate concern on the part of the residents of Bushkill about their future."

"As you know, for many decades past there have been various proposals to develop the Delaware River to meet the water needs of the nation's most heavily populated region. The most recent plan was that proposed by the Interstate Commission on the Delaware."

Unfortunately, this plan was defeated in one house of the Pennsylvania legislature, despite the fact that it was approved by the state legislatures of New York, New Jersey, and Delaware. Then, in 1955, northeastern Pennsylvania was stricken with the worst natural disaster in its history. It is estimated that $164,000,000 in damages were incurred by the region in that flood.

"It was immediately apparent that any scheme for the development of the water resources on the Delaware should include flood control as one of its major benefits. In the face of the 1955 disaster, it was also apparent that the Commonwealth had an obligation to act to prevent any future disasters of this magnitude."

"As a result, the Department of Forests and Waters launched a large-scale flood control program including such major projects as those at Hawley, Stroudsburg, and Scranton."

"At a meeting on June 2nd of last year in Stroudsburg, I described in some detail our reasons for embarking on a land acquisition program, and discussed frankly with those in attendance why this program was stopped. I am certain that no one who attended that meeting has any doubt how deeply concerned the Commonwealth is about acquiring the remaining land in the Bushkill area that will be inundated. However, we felt it wise to await the Corps of Engineers recommendations before going ahead with this program."

Russians
In Lead
--Russell

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower defended Tuesday new intelligence estimates cited by Pentagon leaders in claiming there is no gap in U.S. power to deter the Soviet Union from attacking.

But Chairman Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee told newsmen "I think we are woefully behind in the missile program."

Russell spoke after the committee questioned Air Force officials in secret. In their public statements, Air Secretary Dudley C. Sharp and Gen. Thomas D. White, Air Force chief of staff, claimed "truly remarkable progress" in U.S. missile programs and spoke of promising weapons ahead.

At his news conference, Eisenhower backed up his secretary of defense, Thomas S. Gates Jr., who has been under running attack by some congressional Democrats.

What aroused the Democrats was Gates' statement last week that intelligence evaluations now are based on what U.S. officials believe the Soviets probably will do, rather than what they are capable of doing. This change, the Democrats contend, puts this country's defense position in a better light than is warranted.

Like Gates, Eisenhower said "we have better estimates than we have in the past" on the Soviet arms program. The President contended that both intention and capability must be taken into consideration in making any intelligence estimate.

"We've got all of the power that would be necessary to destroy a good many countries," Eisenhower declared. "We have no intention of using it. And the whole world knows that."

Gates' statements were subject to misinterpretation, Eisenhower said, and he voiced confidence the Defense Department chief "will find ways of clarifying exactly what he meant."

The President also gave a vote of confidence to Gates as "a very splendid civil servant." Not long after Eisenhower said this, the Senate confirmed Gates' nomination. It had been held up briefly.

There were other developments at the White House and on Capitol Hill, as the defense-space issue cracked into an almost certain factor in the forthcoming election campaigns.

1. Eisenhower underscored his "very definite, fixed conclusion" that the space and defense programs are for different purposes.

2. Dr. Herbert F. York, the Defense Department's research director, told the House Space Committee the Pentagon's space program "is not designed to overtake Russia." That responsibility, York said, lies with the civilian-run National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

3. The staff of the House space group took issue with the concentration of the U.S. effort to put a man in space into a single project, called Mercury. The staff's report said "the failure to develop in parallel at least one other man-in-space program could prove to be a costly mistake."

House Defeats
Escheat Bill

HARRISBURG (AP) — A proposal that lists of persons paid for helping the state on escheated estates be made public was defeated in the House Tuesday.

Rep. Maurice H. Goldstein (R-Allegheny) made the proposal. He said it would prevent "political fat-cats" from draining off the fees.

The Democratic majority voted it down, 94-89.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — George F. Kearney, a newspaperman for nearly 50 years, died in a historic mansion of which he had been custodian since 1946. He was 64 and a bachelor.

CAS Director Levels Charge
Commissioners Acted Irresponsibly

A MEMBER of the board of directors of the Children's Aid Society last night charged Monroe County Commissioners acted in a "highly irresponsible manner" in their current dispute with CAS.

Dr. Mary T. Hunsicker cited three instances of what she termed "confusion worse confounded" in the controversy and added: "It would seem evident chaos reigns among our commissioners."

The text of her statement follows:

"To the thinking public:

"Everyday that passes in the Children's Aid - Commissioners controversy seems to add confusion worse confounded. In the last three days for example:

"(1) On Monday, Mr. Lesoine said that the Commissioners could say nothing about a communication from the Children's Aid Society because he had given his word that any release must come from the Society."

"But, at the committee meeting on Sunday none of the three board members meeting with Mr. Lesoine recalls any mention of any release by either party at any time."

"(2) The staff of the Children's Aid Society has been under attack by the Commissioners over the past five weeks."

"But on Monday afternoon, the staff members of the Children's Aid Society were asked to come to the Commissioner's office for job interviews. No one responded."

"(3) The Commissioners, especially Mr. Quick, have through the entire controversy contended that there were plenty of qualified persons in the county to staff the agency and they would set up a bigger and better child care agency."

"But, on Tuesday, Jan. 26, Mr. Quick himself came to the Children's Aid office and spent more than two hours of his precious time and that of the staff in attempting to rehire the very people he has been criticizing publicly."

"In view of this situation, it would seem evident chaos reigns among our commissioners who in this situation have acted in a highly irresponsible manner. After all, they themselves sent the letter informing the CAS that they were discontinuing the use of their services as of Jan. 4, 1960. Now Feb. 1, their second deadline, is almost here and they still have no one to supervise the services. What have they been doing?"

Quick Cites Reasons For Molitor Drop

"THE County Commissioners just can't get along with Molitor," Commissioner Willard Quick said last night when asked for specific reasons why the county officials are asking for Albert Molitor's immediate ouster as executive secretary of the Children's Aid Society of Monroe County.

Quick said the Commissioners have never seen "eye-to-eye" with him, and never will. "Otherwise, Quick said, Molitor is a perfect gentleman, and his conduct other than in the office of executive secretary of the CAS has been exemplary."

No Comments

When asked about his session yesterday with the staff of the CAS, Quick said he had no comment — but then said: "I didn't think you (Daily Record) knew anything about that."

Quick then said that any further information would have to be released at Thursday's meeting with the Commissioners.

When contacted by The Daily Record at his home last night concerning Quick's remarks, Molitor said he had no comment, but did say he had no idea what Quick meant by his statement.

Indict Three
In Slaying

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Three persons were indicted Tuesday for the slaying of Donald Newman, 35, whose body was found in a shallow grave in the basement of his North Philadelphia home.

The January grand jury returned true bills against Newman's wife, Evelyn, 34; Felix Wade Horner, 34, who lived with the Newmans; and Mrs. Newman's brother, Richard E. Bechtel, 19, of Harrisburg.

They are charged with murder, conspiracy to commit murder and voluntary and involuntary manslaughter. A fourth bill names Mrs. Newman as an accessory after the fact.

Police accuse Horner of shooting Newman last Dec. 14 on a pre-arranged signal from Mrs. Newman, who was beside her sleeping husband in a bedroom.

NE YORK (AP) — Roger Blough, chairman of U.S. Steel Corp., said Tuesday he expected the tight steel situation to ease toward the end of the second quarter.

DeGaulle May Assume Role
Of Dictator

PARIS (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle was reported far ahead of other French government leaders Tuesday night in his resolve to remove barricades from the streets of Algiers.

While censored dispatches told of general strikes and demonstrations of varying sizes in all major Algerian cities, De Gaulle conferred with top colleagues on the uprising of French settlers against his policy of self-determination for Algeria.

The order in which the President called his colleagues to his office indicated he might be considering the constitutional provision allowing him to assume dictatorial powers if he feels France's integrity is threatened.

Confer With President

Premier Michel Debre, Defense Minister Pierre Guillaumat and Jacques Chaban Delmas, president of the National Assembly, were on his list of visitors at the presidential palace. De Gaulle canceled a scheduled Cabinet meeting.

The desire to end the deadly impasse without further bloodshed between the French insurgents and the troops that ring their barricades appeared to be the aim of almost everyone in Paris.

The French Press Agency, a semi-official news service, caused a flurry here with an Algiers-dated dispatch saying two insurgent leaders had left the barricades Tuesday night for a talk with Gen. Maurice Challe, the French commander in chief in Algeria.

This was followed quickly, however, by another story attributing the information to insurgents and saying that Challe's headquarters denied any knowledge of such a meeting.

Pass Censor

The dispatches presumably passed through the French army's strict censorship, which was augmented Tuesday afternoon by a halt for several hours in all private communications between France and Algeria.

The insurgent leaders are Pierre Lagallier, 28, a fiery former paratrooper with a black goatee and what he considers a mission to keep Algeria French, and Joseph Ortiz, 47, a café owner and rightist political organizer. Their men were at last reports still holding two areas, surrounded by troops.

It was De Gaulle's insistence on the right of the Algerian people—a million European settlers and nine million North Africans—to choose their own future that led to the uprising Sunday.

Algers lived under a state of siege, a modified form of martial law.

Arrest Pair

NEW YORK (AP) — A mother and her daughter — the latter a medical college honor student — were convicted of prostitution Tuesday.

Magistrate Hyman Bushel remanded Mrs. Henrietta Pernia, 44, and her daughter, Doris, 23, for sentencing Thursday.

They were arrested in their Queens home on Dec. 30 by police investigating neighbors' complaints that men were entering and leaving the house at all hours, day and night.

Three men testified that they had given the women varying amounts of money.

The daughter cried on the witness stand. She insisted she had been in her pajamas studying pathology and bacteriology when police raided.

Death An Enigma

NEW YORK (AP) — In death as in life, Diana Barrymore remained an enigma. An autopsy Tuesday failed to determine the cause of her sudden death and further tests were ordered.

The kangaroo meat had been shipped from Australia via Jersey City, N.J., by the Local and Western Shippers Inc., Pugh said. It is to be fed to the new breed of mink at the Mount Pocono ranch next Spring.

House Rejects Additional School Fire Hazard Funds

HARRISBURG (AP) — An additional five million dollars to help public schools repair fire and safety hazards was rejected by the House Tuesday.

It was a rebuff of the argument between Republicans and Democrats over whether or not there is any surplus in the General Fund to finance additional programs.

Republicans sponsored the additional money, but the Democratic majority defeated it, 95-90.

Rep. Albert W. Johnson, GOP floor leader, claimed the $6,200,000 surplus shown in General Fund receipts at the end of December would finance the subsidy.

Rep. Stephen McCann, Democratic leader, replied that the state's relief load is running away above estimates and that the shortage in relief funds could run as high as 40 or more million dollars by the end of the two-year fiscal period, May 31, 1961.

The December surplus, McCann pointed out, was due entirely to a windfall in inheritance taxes and could not be considered a trend.

"The 1959 Legislative set aside $3,700,000 which were deemed fire or safety hazards. This money is being doled out on a first-come, first-served basis."

McCann said he was sure the 1961 Legislature would appropriate additional money if needed then, but that the present time is too early to commit any more funds.

Highways Needed Across State,
Official Tells Legislators

HARRISBURG (AP) — The vice president of the Keystone Shortway Assn. said Tuesday industrial development in Pennsylvania's hard-pressed areas is doomed to failure unless modern highways are built.

"No matter how much effort we put forth in the communities to attract new industry, the fact remains that we are doomed to failure unless we give us modern highways," Martin Cohn told a group of Senate and House members.

Cohn, of Hazleton, testified at the opening of a two-day hearing into a report by the U.S. Comptroller General's office critical of Pennsylvania highway operations.

The shortway official said his group advocated raising the state tax on gasoline or whatever revenue measures are needed to build the 300-mile highway on the interstate system between Sharon and Stroudsburg.

"We have been successful in attracting new industry to the Hazleton, Scranton and Wilkes-Barre areas to date mainly on the promise that the shortway will be built soon. You can get results only so long on a promise," Cohn added.

The Lawrence administration asked the 1959 Legislature to raise the five-cents-a-gallon tax on gasoline a penny but the proposal was bottled up in the Republican-controlled Senate.

Chairman George N. Wade of the Senate Highways Committee called the hearings to look into the comptroller general's report. But the proceedings Tuesday developed mainly into a sounding board for groups seeking highways for their areas.

The committee also heard appeals for a speed-up in the road-building program from William Yoder, Mount Carmel, president of the Anthracite Expressway Assn., and John J. Grove, Pittsburgh, assistant director of the Allegheny Conference on Community Development.

Generally, the speakers agreed that without adequate funds to match federal aid, the state's progress in building interstate roads will be retarded.

Two other witnesses disagreed with the comptroller general's finding that Pennsylvania's use of private consulting engineers on road planning was uneconomical and unwise.

"I have no quarrel with the idea of using consulting engineers," said Carl E. Fritts, Washington, vice president of engineering, Automotive Safety Foundation. He declined to discuss other criticism in the report.

Government Asks For Added
Law To Ban Harmful Drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government asked Congress Tuesday for more power and greater flexibility to ban cancer-producing and other harmful agents from foods, drugs and cosmetics.

Secretary of Welfare Arthur S. Flemming, in urging the House Commerce Committee to act quickly, said present law is unrealistic and forces him to act unfairly.

He recommended, for one thing that colors — in foods and cosmetics — be brought under the law that flatly bans the use of food additives and pesticides in any way that may induce cancer in humans.

Flemming said scientists still are in the dark about how much of these agents it takes to produce cancer in humans. However, he said, it is clear that some agents can produce malignant tumors in humans over a period of time.

The danger of cancer is so great, Flemming said, that the government just can't take any risks with it.

31 Koreans Die
In Stampede

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A human stampede trampled 31 Koreans, including 11 children, to death Tuesday night at a railway station in Seoul. Forty-nine persons were injured, some seriously.

The human mass of travelers bound for the country to celebrate the Lunar New Year piled up at the foot of a staircase leading to a train platform.

Railway officials said one person apparently tripped and started the pileup.

Named To Board
Of Reading RR

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — E. Paul Gangewere, Reading Railroad vice president in charge of operations and maintenance, was elected to the board of directors Tuesday.

A native of Bethlehem, Gangewere is a veteran of 38 years' service with the Reading. He started his career after graduation from Lehigh University's School of Mechanical Engineering. His first job was as a special apprentice in the locomotive and car shops at Reading. He became a vice president in 1950.

Boehm Says No Schools Will Close Due To Lack Of Funds

HARRISBURG (AP) — The state's education chief said Tuesday no schools are likely to be closed because of pinched funds.

Dr. Charles H. Boehm, superintendent of public instruction, also said in a letter to the House GOP leadership it was his belief that no student would be deprived of the type of education he is now receiving because of school money problems.

Pleasant Valley Jointure, Monroe County, was listed as having curtailed essential educational programs because of fiscal difficulties.

Supervising principal John C. Mills said, however, this did not refer to current programs, but to "future plans" of the district. He explained the curriculum was being maintained and even strengthened, but plans for enlarging it to include less essential subjects had to be telescoped because of the building program the jointure is launching.

Rep. Albert W. Johnson, GOP floor leader, described the Boehm statement as "a veritable bombshell."

"What Dr. Boehm is saying runs directly counter to everything we have been told by educators and school districts about an existing financial crisis," Johnson commented.

Boehm's letter was in reply to a GOP request for his views. Republicans have claimed the state's schools face a financial crisis.

Dear Abby

Change Your Ways, Honey

Dear Abby: I am a girl, 15, who, everybody says is a "nice girl." But, Abby, I'm not as nice as they think I am. I let a guy pick me up in a movie one night, I was with my girl friend and he was with another boy. They had a car and offered us a ride home. We parked and my girl friend and I made out with him and his friend. We aren't "pick-ups" and I don't know what made us act like that. I've met him several times (on the sly) since, but he never takes me anywhere except to park. He says he loves me but he won't meet my parents. I think about him night and day. How can I make it a respectable relationship if he refuses to meet my parents? I feel so dirty and sneaky.

NOT SO NICE

Dear Not So Nice: Even a "nice" girl can act on an impulse and behave foolishly ONCE. But you cheapen yourself when you continue to meet him on the sly and make out with him when it's apparent that that's all he wants you for. A boy who refuses to meet a girl's parents is strictly bad news. DO NOT see him again.

Dear Abby: Ladies no longer dress like Queen Victoria, yet they expect men to dress like Prince Albert.

When are men going to demand equal freedom in their attire? The hitching post is long gone, yet men are still required to wear collars that are about as comfortable as a piece of rope around their necks.

It shuts off the flow of blood to their heads. No wonder so many men are bald.

BALD AND SUFFOCATING

Dear B. and S.: Where have you been? Men have been wearing soft collars since women got the vote.

Dear Abby: My wife and I have been married for 22 years. We used to enjoy a cocktail or two together every night before dinner. Pretty soon the "cocktail hour" would start earlier and earlier for her. Many times it was "over" before I got home.

She makes no effort to hide the liquor bill, which keeps getting bigger and bigger.

Is it possible, Abby, for a woman who has been a "social drinker" to suddenly become an alcoholic at the age of 43? I am worried about her and don't know what to do.

WORRIED HUSBAND

Dear Worried: It is possible. Your wife needs to face her problem squarely. I can think of no better (or cheaper) solution than to get her to an "A.A." meeting. Uncontrolled drinking is an illness. It's no disgrace to be ill. Good luck!

Confidential: To "Scared Stiff": The disease you mention can be cured. If you have any such suspicions, for goodness sake see a doctor immediately.

France Groping Politically-Ottaway

EDITOR'S NOTE: David B. Ottaway, a student at the University of Paris, will write occasional articles of his impressions in France, Sweden and other countries that he visits.

PARIS, France — Has de Gaulle changed the political complexion of present day France or not?

This is the question that comes to mind in the aftermath of Pinay's "replacement" by Baumgartner as minister of finance.

He is the fourth minister to leave the original Debre government.

Just one year ago the name of de Gaulle was synonymous with a policy of governmental stability.

This supreme confidence in a radical and long-awaited reorientation of French politics has definitely been affected by the number of ministerial changes in the last year.

Not Last Word

In fact, to many people and political parties in France, de Gaulle is not the last word.

At least the last word has not been said by him as yet. This point of view contends that France has not found the exact form of executive-legislative relationship which is necessary to her political complexion.

I have heard or read much concerning this greatly discussed subject. All suggest that France is still in an evolutionary period as regards the inter-functionings of the Fifth Republic.

Some of the opinions in the press and by Frenchmen with whom I have talked represent a fundamental pessimism toward the present regime.

One professor at the Sorbonne explained that "France has never found the type of democratic process which suits her best and, in fact, is still looking for it."

Another, a professor of political science, assured us in a lecture on the Fifth Republic that it would not last any longer than de Gaulle himself.

Note Of Pessimism

A series of articles by M. P. Vianson-Pons concerning the second year of the Fifth Republic, in the French Daily newspaper "le monde" again sounds a note of pessimism.

This writer spoke of the discouragement which de Gaulle himself has faced and expressed in the last few months. Fight over public aide to private Catholic schools, a subject of hot debate in December, was one reason for such discouragement.

Conjecturing on the thoughts of de Gaulle, Pons wrote, "If Parliament cannot bring itself to agreement, it is because Parliament is badly adapted, and it is necessary to dismiss it. If it is the Constitution which is bad, it is necessary to modify the Constitution."

Latest predictions of many newspapers of varying political opinions is that de Gaulle will tighten the reins of government in the near future.

Vigorous Personal Rule

This could mean suspension of Parliament. More likely it signifies a more vigorous personal rule on the part of de Gaulle himself.

With Pinay out of the political picture for the moment, there remain few radical divergences from the de Gaulle theory of government.

The present tendency toward a government of technicians rather than one of politicians, would seem the natural prelude and a necessary prerequisite to more successful one man rule.

Emmaus Church Granted $50,000 Loan By Presbytery

FAITH Presbyterian Church of Emmaus has been granted a $50,000 loan by the board of national missions, it was announced at a meeting of the Lehigh Presbytery in the church recently.

The amount will be matched by a similar sum from local sources to enable the congregation to begin construction on a four-acre site purchased by the presbytery earlier.

Rev. Gilbert Dodd, a native of Stroudsburg, is pastor of the church, the newest in the Presbytery.

In another action the Presbytery raised the minimum salary for ministers under its jurisdiction from $4,000 to $4,300 per year. Presbytery also commended Churches which pay a car allowance and utility costs for their ministers.

$27,000 Increase

Rev. Gorman Roof, presbytery executive, reported that the giving of the 44 Churches within the presbytery to General Assembly Benevolences for 1959 amounted to $242,841. This represents a $27,000 increase over 1958.

Rev. Roland Catterall of Bangor Presbyterian Church announced final plans for the Westminster Fellowship Youth Rally at the Catasauqua Presbyterian Church on Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Junior High and Senior High Young People from the Churches of the Presbytery will attend. H. Kenneth Lee, teacher at the Stroud Union High School, and Rev. Edward Breitbach of Free-Land Presbyterian Church will speak on the topic "Science and Religion."

John Adams reported for the board of directors of Brainerd Presbyterian Center that renovations have now been completed at the center which makes it possible for retreat groups to use the facilities during the winter months.

C.T.J. Willis of Stroudsburg was elected as one of the elder commissioners to the Synod of Pennsylvania which meets at Grove City College in June.

Rev. John A. Bollier of the First Presbyterian Church of Stroudsburg, was elected as one of the minister commissioners to the General Assembly which meets in Cleveland, Ohio on May 18-25.

There were 71 ministers and elders present for the morning and afternoon sessions of the Presbytery meeting. Local commissioners included Elders Harold Hosier, Elam Gray, Donald Brink, Irvin Walter and Harold Lee. Ministers present from the Presbytery Church of Monroe County included the Rev. Messrs. Frank Wingenter, Wesley Crowther, Francis Seely, John Bollier, Luther Markin and Gorman Roof.

Goddard Tells Dam Area People 'Go On Living'

"We, like most of the people at the June 2nd meeting, expected the Corps of Engineers to complete its report by December of 1959. There are 19 Federal agencies taking part in the Corps' study, however, and some sections of the report were not ready on schedule. There is every reason to expect that the report will be available in May of this year.

"I find it difficult to believe that the association misunderstood what would follow, once this report is made. The Association's letter implies that the survey results would be submitted to Congress in December, 1959. This is not true.

"Prior to going to Congress, it must be reviewed by the North Atlantic Division of the Corps of Engineers, and by the Chief of Engineers and the Board of Engineers in Washington, D. C. It is obvious, therefore, that the Corps' recommendations will not be introduced into Congress during this session.

"The association asks if Tock's Island Dam will be constructed. While it is hazardous to predict the success of any measure that goes before our representative political institutions, I think I can say with all the certainty possible, that Tock's Island Dam will be constructed. Since the dam will be necessary by the year 1975, it is obvious that land acquisition and planning must start long, long before then.

Assurance They Want

"I wish I could give the association and the residents of Bushkill the assurance they so badly want. Particularly, I would like to remove any harmful economic impact which the pending construction of a reservoir entails on any community involved.

"There are always economic side-effects to any large-scale public project, whether it be a highway, an airport, or a reservoir. We can safely say, however, that once the Tock's Island Reservoir is finished, the economy of the area will experience benefits far in excess of those now derived from the beauties of the river and of the Pocono region.

"My recommendation to all the affected residents is that they go on living as if the reservoir had never been proposed. Make improvements to your homes, till your gardens, establish a new business, for when the acquisition finally comes, you will be reimbursed fairly and in accordance with your improvements."

Blasts In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Two explosions, seconds apart, damaged equipment in a West Philadelphia cleaning plant Tuesday.

The blasts wrecked a dryer at the Friends Cleaners and Dryers, damaged two others, and blew out a skylight. No one was in the damaged section at the time.

It is just across the street from St. Callistus' parochial school where $90 pupils had been dismissed for the day only a short time before the blasts.

Philip Spector, the owner of the plant, estimated damage to equipment and clothing at $50,000.

In suburban Media, 10 minutes later, an explosion in a school boiler room smashed a heavy wooden door and wrecked the heating system.

The explosion occurred shortly after the Nativity parochial school's 514 children had been dismissed for the day.

'Y' Campaign For Members Totals 139

THE MOST spectacular success of the current YMCA membership campaign was reported last night at a meeting of volunteer workers at the YMCA.

A total of 86 new members, in addition to 169 renewals, was announced by the five divisions which make up the campaign. This compared with the 53 new members turned in at the first report meeting.

The team captained by Joseph DeRenzis was high for the night with 11 new members, followed by John Wilson Jr. and Howard Coslett, each with eight.

By Divisions
By divisions, Albert Yutz was high with 22 new members and 40 renewals; Claude Arnold second with 21 and 34; Anne Wyckoff third with 19 and 34, and Jack Haswell with 16 and 41. Karl Weier, reporting for Barrett Township, listed a total of 11 new members and two renewals.

Rev. Peter K. Emmons, campaign chairman, called upon Mary Jane Gilpin, a young girl who has been a member of the YMCA since she was eight years old, and she told of the many activities in which she has participated as a Y member.

The main speaker was Harry Newkirk, teacher of the public speaking classes held at the YMCA. He urged the workers to base their salesmanship on the many services offered by the association.

The final report meeting which workers hope will be a "victory" dinner will be held next Monday, Feb. 1, at 8 p.m.

Rights Kept From Defendant

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The prosecutor in the Finch murder trial testified Monday that he did not advise Carole Tregoff of her constitutional rights either before or after charging her with murder.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Fred N. Whichello also testified that he made up his mind to bring the charge during a recess in her testimony at a preliminary hearing for her lover, Dr. R. Bernard Finch.

He said discrepancies between her story on the witness stand and earlier stories to police led him to charge her with murder.

Motor Club Takes Steps To Increase Members Aid

FURTHER STEPS to increase the benefits extended to members were taken by the board of governors of the Pocono Mountains Motor Club at its monthly meeting in the Penn Stroud Hotel last night.

Highlight of the session, presided over by John M. Crandall, was adoption of a legal reimbursement service whereby members are given financial assistance in defending summary motor code cases which the members feel have been brought without just reason or cause.

A schedule will be set up listing the amount of reimbursement the club will pay in each type of alleged violation. Members will hire the attorney of their own choice in defending the cases.

Another Service
Another new service which the club adopted is the offering of a cash reward for information leading to the apprehension and conviction of anyone stealing a member's motor vehicle.

Increases in the amount of benefits paid to members for medical and surgical expenses under the club's automobile accident insurance coverage had previously been approved by the board. The new amounts will be announced upon completion of the revised schedule.

To Expand
President Crandall reported that plans are progressing for expansion of office services and will be put into effect shortly. The increase in annual dues to $10 a year for members and $5 for associate members will go into effect at the end of the fiscal year March 31. All new members signed after April 1 and renewals due on and after that date will be billed at the new rate. The $2.50 increase is the first since 1942.

The newly elected secretary-manager, Clement Heist, retiring State Policeman, was present at last night's meeting, along with the present secretary-manager, Mrs. Cynthia Watt, whose resignation takes effect March 1.

Firemen Save Apartment Building

A FIRE of unknown origin yesterday made one family homeless and a second nearly so in East Stroudsburg.

The fire started in a closet in the second-floor apartment of David Hardy, 178 Ransberry Ave. and burned the closet and the second floor-attic ceiling.

Smoke and water damaged the Hardy's apartment, and also that of David McGlynn on the first floor of the building.

Clarence Strunk, East Stroudsburg fire chief, reported that four pieces of equipment and 43 firemen were at the scene fighting the fire.

First Call Of Year
Strunk said it was the first call of the year for the fire department.

The Red Cross is presently helping Hardy and his wife and three children find suitable lodging until such time as the building, owned by Alvin Smith, can be repaired.

Strunk said the department was called at 4:10 p.m. and returned to the firehouse at 6 p.m. Total amount of damage was not estimated by Strunk.

Noticed Smoke
Mr. and Mrs. Hardy told firemen they were watching television when Mrs. Hardy noticed smoke coming from the closet. Damage to the McGlynn apartment was confined to smoke and water.

Strunk said the fire was burning fiercely in the closet when firemen reached the scene.

Efficient work by the firemen minimized the damage.

Spies For Soviet To Save Father
KARLSRUHE, Germany (AP) — The first officer of the new West German forces to be tried for espionage told the Supreme Court yesterday how he became a Soviet spy to save his father who lives in Communist East Germany.

Also on trial are Ludwig's sister, Hanneli Jaeger, his brother-in-law, Werner Jaeger, and West German navy boatswain's mate Fritz Briesemeister.

Salute To Judge Rhodes

Members and friends of the legal fraternity will gather tonight to honor Chester H. Rhodes, president judge of the Pennsylvania Superior Court, on the occasion of his 25th anniversary as a member of the state judiciary.

Sponsored by the Monroe County Bar Assn., the testimonial dinner will pay tribute to a man who is highly respected in his profession and by his wide circle of friends and associates here and elsewhere —and a man whose advice is frequently sought by others.

Judge Rhodes is one of the oldest living members of the Monroe County Bar, having been admitted on Oct. 4, 1913 when he started the practice of law in Stroudsburg. He served as county solicitor from 1918 to 1920 and was elected district attorney for a term beginning in January, 1920.

Two years later, he resigned that position upon his election as a member of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives. Judge Rhodes' record of service in Harrisburg was outstanding and he was returned to the House in 1924, 1926, 1930 and 1932.

In November, 1934, he was elected judge of the Superior Court for a term of 10 years and was reelected on Nov. 7, 1944 for a second term. He is now starting his sixth year on his third term, to which he was elected Nov. 2, 1954. Judge Rhodes was commissioned president judge of the Superior Court, a position he still holds, on March 1, 1947.

His interests are widespread, extending to many worthwhile activities beyond the fields of government and law. The learned judge, for example, is a member of the Advisory Board of Pennsylvania Military College, is closely associated with Muhlenberg College and the new Muhlenberg Medical Center, and has been an active worker in the Lutheran Church and a number of prominent organizations.

One of the finest awards ever to come to a resident of Monroe County was presented to Judge Rhodes five years ago. On Jan. 18, 1955, he received the Meritorious Service Medal of the Commonwealth, the highest award Pennsylvania can bestow upon a citizen.

The Daily Record knows it speaks for the community in joining the bar association in paying tribute to Judge Rhodes for a long period of public service and in wishing him many more years in his present position on the bench.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Back Where We Started

One good result of the television scandals, bubbled a magazine article recently, is a growing demand for news and public affairs programs. The article went on to proudly note that plans were being made for a television critic to appear on a new CBS show devoted to books, arts and entertainment.

If this is the answer to improving television programs, a better one comes to mind instantly. Turn the set off and read the newspapers, books, etc., yourself. Take up a study of the arts and attend some entertaining programs.

Of course you will be right back where you started—before television.

Maybe that's the improvement everyone is searching for without knowing it.

Reports From Congress

Cool Toward Budget

By Congressional Quarterly
Washington — President Eisenhower's budget for fiscal 1961 faces a skeptical reception on Capitol Hill, with some reason.

Over the past six years, the President has underestimated expenditures by a total of $16 billion and overestimated receipts by a total of $15 billion. But don't blame him; it could happen to any President.

In only two of those years did he come within $1 billion of estimating actual outlays. For fiscal 1955 his estimate proved to be $1 billion too high — the only time he erred in this direction. His best year was fiscal 1958, when expenditures exceeded his original estimate by only $100 million.

For fiscal years 1956, 1957, and 1959, actual expenditures topped the President's estimates by $41 billion, $45 billion, and $68 billion respectively. For the current year, fiscal 1960, the increase is expected to approach $15 billion.

The picture is no better on the receipts side of the budget. For three of the past six years — fiscal 1956, 1957, and 1960 — receipts totaled $14.5 billion more than the first projected. But in fiscal 1955, 1958 and 1959, they added up to $13 billion less than estimated.

All of which suggests that it will be a minor miracle if the Treasury winds up fiscal 1961 almost 18 months hence with outlays of $79.8 billion and receipts of $84 billion, the figures the President is shooting for.

Nobody's Fault — It's not the President's fault that the Government's books have refused to balance according to his estimates. Budget making is a perverse business, for these reasons:

The estimates cover a period beginning six months hence and ending 12 months later. A lot can happen in 18 months to throw the budget out of kilter.

Expenditures, in particular, are subject to change at the hands of Congress — although not to the degree that many legislators would like.

Receipts, consisting largely of income tax revenues, are highly sensitive to the tempo of the economy, and can soar or plunge with sudden shifts in the business cycle.

All of these factors may be expected to help shape the Government's actual accounts in fiscal 1961. Any prediction of the amount by which the President's estimates are likely to err would be even less valid than the estimates.

Anybody's Guess — It is worth noting, however, that in times of prosperity the Eisenhower budgets have consistently underestimated both expenditures and receipts.

His budgets for fiscal 1956 and 1957, spanning most of the 1955-57 boom, underestimated receipts by a total of $12.9 billion and expenditures by a total of $8.6 billion. Again, income and outgo this year will both run about $15 billion above the amounts estimated by the President last January.

The pattern is there, and prosperity is in the air. But again, your guess may be as good as the President's.

Mr. John F. Hill, Editor
The Daily Record

Dear Mr. Hill:

The death agony of the Children's Aid Society has now been accomplished. Every concerned person in this County is saddened by this terrible loss.

Perhaps of even greater concern is the grim realization that entrenched politicians have forgotten they are the servants of the people. It is clear that we cannot save the Children's Aid Society but we can insist on a day of reckoning.

It has been demonstrated before, notably in Philadelphia, that when a party is in power too long, the politicians become indifferent to the welfare and best interests of the community. It seems abundantly clear that the time has come for all good citizens to clean house.

I am a registered Democrat and I plan to keep that registration but I will vote a straight Republican ticket at the first opportunity. I do not believe Republicans are better men than Democrats but I know a vote is the only language a politician will understand in being reminded that he is a servant of the people.

Red Cross Issues: — The appearance in 1959 of commemoratives honoring the Centenary of the Red Cross was a change from a number of countries has puzzled collectors who have checked reference books and find the Geneva Convention was not signed until 1864.

The confusion comes from the fact that the issues in 1959 are to commemorate the birth of the Red Cross idea a century ago at the battle of Solferino in Northern Italy.

Joan Henri Dunant, a Swiss citizen, was distressed by the suffering of the wounded during the battle (June 14, 1859) and wrote a pamphlet about the need for organized relief for wounded soldiers and prisoners of war. In 1863 the permanent International Committee for Relief of the Wounded held its first Congress in Geneva and at a second Congress held August 22, 1864, the first Geneva Convention was signed. But there was no Red Cross organization, by that name until 1880 when the name was changed to the International Committee of the Red Cross.

It is said that a Madame Basting suggested the Red Cross as a symbol for the relief work of the International Committee and proposed Red Cross as a name for the organization. So the Centenary of the Red Cross actually covers the years 1859 to 1864.

On March 23, the second stamp in the Credo series will have first day sale at Philadelphia, Pa. This will feature Benjamin Franklin's statement, "Fear to do ill and you need fear enough else." It will be printed on the Giori press in brown and green on white paper.

The quotation appears above a facsimile of Franklin's signature with a symbolic device, a dove within an olive wreath, at the left center. It is the second of the six commemoratives in this series featuring the words of distinguished American patriots and called the "Credo" series.

Off The Record

Isn't it appropriate that the Monroe County Republicans picked Thomas Lincoln Waring to "MC" their Lincoln Day Dinner, Feb. 12, at the Penn Stroud Hotel.

Waring, the gentleman who flew to the West Coast and took an oath enroute to come back by dog team, if necessary, will give the program plenty of class when it pays homage to the man who stood by his guns and became one of the greatest presidents of all time.

Donald Henry, the state trooper stationed at the Stroudsburg barracks, is waiting for the summer to arrive so he can get out his dusty golf clubs.

Henry is rated one of the better linksmen in the State Police ranks. However, he refuses to divulge his score even when in competition for added laurels.

Did you know that Ted Cahn's brother Jack is an accomplished pianist.

Ted, the Stroudsburg used car dealer, is the oldest one in the family which grew up in Carbondale, Pa. Jack learned at an early age the art of tickling the keys and was considered a better than average pianist before he graduated from high school.

Bill Warner and Carl Howe, owners of properties adjoining the new phases of the Stroudsburg Turnpike woke up the other day to find a bulldozer scraping into their land.

According to the pair who live on the Park Ave. end of Lenox St., they had not realized that the state was going to take so much of their land. Both men are wondering what next.

Jere Stofflet and Jack Baldwin are still arguing over the number of quail Baldwin brought down in a recent hunt at an arena preserve.

Jack says it was four but brother Stofflet doubts his veracity—kiddingly of course.

Inside Washington

Lawmakers Eye Rising Interest Rates

Washington — Rising interest rates have caused the attention of a bi-partisan group of senators, to be turned to the practice of some unscrupulous merchants in concealing usurious charges on installment buying through fees, misstatements and other devices.

Led by Senator Paul Douglas, Illinois Democrat, some 20 senators have introduced legislation to make sellers on credit state the true interest rate charged before the purchase is completed. There would be a $5,000 fine and a year's imprisonment for willful violators.

The measure would cover such time purchases as autos, household appliances, television and radio sets and the myriad of things that make up the nation's present $50 billion of 'installment debt.' It would also include purchases of homes and other real estate.

Douglas contends that all too often interest charges of 30 to 40 per cent a year are concealed by fast-talking salesmen who quote on price and then tack on service charges, delivery charges, and other extras.

"We don't want to regulate interest rates," Douglas explains. "However, we do want the buyer to know the true rate he is being asked to pay."

The Douglas group believes that a too-large installment debt can endanger the stability of the national economy. They believe that many prospective purchasers would not buy if they knew just how high the actual interest was.

A bill similar to Douglas's will also be introduced in the House. Similar in philosophy to the measure several years ago requiring the posting of new automobile prices, backers anticipate it will become law during this session of Congress.

On Being Polite — Senators and congressmen rarely let their tempers flare through during debate in Congress. The usual form is to refer to their colleagues in most flattering terms, regardless of their real feelings.

The late Alben Barkley, former vice president, and long-time senator from Kentucky, used to put it this way: "If some colleague refers to you as 'the distinguished senator' consider yourself lucky. If he refers to you as 'the able and distinguished senator,' be on your guard, for the knife is getting sharper. If, however, he refers to you as 'the able and distinguished senator and my good friend' then duck fast because he is trying to see if the jugular vein is exposed. And in case he refers to you as 'my very good friend, the able, distinguished and outstanding senator,' then run for your life."

The Pennsylvania Story

Jockey For Advantage

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — Both Republicans and Democrats in Pennsylvania are bent on converting the record of the past 1959 legislative session — second longest in the history of the state — into a campaign asset in this presidential election year 1960.

The current 1960 session is expected to be the kickoff point for this strategy. Republicans who control the State Senate and thus by virtue of their "veto" power in that chamber have been able to hold down Democratic Lawrence Administration programs, are out for a heavy play on their budget pruning efforts and a quasi holding-the-line on the new-tax front.

Administration Democrats on the other hand — now riding out their second tenure of office — are scheduled to use exactly the same point, although in a different light.

The budget pruning forced by the GOP legislative bloc, for example, has been a heavy thorn in the Democratic hide. The theme on this point is expected to run along the line of curtailing expansion of essential state services.

The Republican contention on the other hand is simply, "nuts, we've given you adequate funds for essential services and more than you had last biennium."

To Pennsylvania's voters, who this Fall will be putting in an entirely new 210-member House of Representatives and half of the 50-man Senate along with electing a new State Auditor General and State Treasurer, the question of which side is right unquestionably will be a stickler.

Much is riding on this year's election outcome.

Back to the legislative fracas of last year.

Senate Republicans refused to go along with a $55 million tax packet proposed by the Administration which Administration Democrats insist should have been enacted to help pay for an increased school subsidy program for local school districts, plus — somehow — an increase for state payrolls.

Legislative Republicans on the other hand, blew up on the subject, refusing to go along with the tax program and insisted that the Democratic-controlled House (where all revenue-raising measures must originate) produce another tax proposal to pay the increased school subsidy bill — a move Democrats in the House did not make.

Net result: the school subsidy legislation went begging in the 1959 session but may be breathed to life in the current 1960 gathering. Who is to blame? Take your choice.

Similarly, the Democratic Lawrence administration came out strongly for an increase of one cent a gallon in the state gas tax.

The legislation passed the Democratic House but died in the GOP-controlled Senate on the contention by Senate Republicans that no increase was needed; that the Department of Highways already has adequate funds.

A cutdown on local area projects on the road building front unquestionably is in the offing on the part of Administration Democrats to drive home their point.

Should the gas tax increase have been approved or not? Take your choice.

These and a host of similar legislative "gimmicks" are in the offing for Pennsylvania's voters to chew over during 1960 — the "big" election year.

Both Democrats and Republicans this year will be out to convert the past 1959 session into an asset — one way or another!

CUTIES

—By E. Simms Campbell

We hear and read so much these days about how inadequate teachers are: how their vacations are too long; and how many of them hold more than one job.

What Judge Goldstein and the Grand Street Boys' Assn. have set out to prove, by selecting 100 teachers a year, is that there are today profoundly dedicated teachers who serve their pupils well and whose influence upon the lives of those who come within their orbit will always be ennobling.

It is a task worthwhile and might be emulated by other communities.

The gift is not too large, only $500, but considering the inadequate pay of teachers, it helps along. Ten teachers received the $500 gift this year and 90 more received only a scroll.

I quote from one citation, that to Frank Alweis of James Monroe High School, to indicate what is meant by dedication:

"By your superiors, by Barnard College and the Ford Foundation, your teaching has been characterized as vital, dynamic and stimulating, marked by sound scholarship, noble character and high professional ideals."

"With zeal and devotion you have inspired able students to a high degree of creative achievement, culminating in

"I met the cutest doctor yesterday . . . when my boy friend tried to make that jump!"

Just Between Us —

—by Bobby Westbrook

Things begin to look a little brighter, probably because I've been talking to people with their families on their minds—or reducing diets—or new recipes. Normal, everyday things.

And funny things. Seems that the Russell Harmon's at a Nurserymen's convention at Asbury Park noticed that "Operation Petticoat" was showing at a local theater. They wanted to see it because it was a comedy but primarily because Lt. Jack Harmon had told them how, on maneuvers with the Navy last year, the crew had been asstounded to see, emerging from the sea, a bright pink submarine, and hadn't learned until they docked that it was the one being used in the movie.

Well, after dinner, the Harmon's went to the theater, settled themselves for a good chuckle, and looked. There was the submarine all right but it was being depth-bombed like mad. It was a little difficult to see anything funny in the plight of its crew and even more difficult to see how the thing was going to turn pink after the captain blew it up to prevent its falling into enemy hands.

They finally discovered that they were watching "Battle of the Coral Sea" and that "Operation Petticoat" advertised in the lobby, was being shown at a theater a block away. They not only got their money back but the manager himself escorted them to the new theater and they finally got their chuckle, and their pink submarine.

The only trouble is that Elizabeth is still worried about what happened to the crew in the "Battle of the Coral Sea."

The reason the story seems so hilarious to me is that it's just about my speed. I am always answering a telephone that is ringing only on the television, responding to bids being made at the next bridge table, and answering brightly when anybody calls "Bob" with Bob Clark, Bob Stewart and Bob Widmer all very much in demand.

Simplicity Scores At Paris Show

Paris (AP) — Simplicity can be a sensational success.

Nina Ricci's designer, Jules Crahay, proved it Tuesday with a fashion collection that is sure to give Dior's Saint-Laurent a run for his money and may well cop top honors for the season.

Without a single distortion of the figure, and without resort to dramatic tricks, Crahay has created dresses and suits that are fresh and original.

A jaded audience at the end of the day perked up to shiver his show with flattering adjectives and bursts of applause.

His gypsy line, with free-swinging knee-length skirts and small waists, is the theme that unites the collection. Tunic dresses and pleated skirts may not sound like news, but they are the way Crahay cuts them. His line is as clean and uncluttered as always, and it's the little details that make the difference.

The designer himself names liberty as his motif — "borrowed skirts and little loose bolero jackets swing and swish with the wearer's step."

That Crahay trade-mark, the deep-dive neckline, is still there to enliven things, but the designer doesn't need any attention-getters. He deserves a medal for making a collection without resorting to any one of that trite trio that have had dressmakers in a rut for a decade—the sack, the shirt-waist, and the sheath.

To Successful People All Work Is All Play

By Anne Heywood

All successful people I have ever met have had one thing in common—their work has been play and they would have done it just for sheer pleasure even if they had had large independent incomes.

Housewife or painter, engineer or stenographer, diplomat or plumber, designer or accountant—the people who are in the right field are invariably having a ball.

Banquet Manager This is the first thing that you notice about Lore (pronounced Laurie) Moser, banquet manager of New York's Tavern-on-the-Green in Central Park.

She sits in her charming office, with trees and grass outside, looking for all the world like a happy society matron in a fashionable suburb planning her niece's wedding. (She's too young for it to be her daughter's). And yet she's a topflight career woman right smack in the middle of Manhattan.

Calm Voice The second thing you notice about Lore is her soft, calm voice. In a field full of pressures, deadlines and excited people, her serenity is somewhat startling.

I asked her what she does if a customer gets excited or angry.

"It doesn't happen often," she told me. "But, sometimes, with a wedding party, if the mother of the bride gets excited, I find that the louder she speaks, the softer I speak, and in no time at all, everything settles down."

Chose Field Lore Moser always knew she wanted the hotel or restaurant field, and got her degree in it at Cornell. On top of that, she learned stenography.

"Maybe it isn't fair, but it's necessary," she remarked with that same equanimity. Then she went from secretary to a resort director, to secretary to a hotel executive, to her own fabulous post as banquet manager at the Tavern-on-the-Green.

Her work involves lining up and handling wedding parties, sweet-sixteen parties, theater parties, sales meetings, conventions and a very inexpensive Country Club Party Package for miscellaneous occasions. She does all the initial arrangements, works with the chefs and the staff and the customers and loves every detail.

Her Household I asked her about her own household (she's happily married).

"Oh, I'm not much of a housewife, really," she told me. "Frequently I take home a cooked chicken or salmon steak which our chef has done here. Then I surreptitiously warm it up and serve it and my husband always pretends he thinks I cooked it myself!"

(If the hotel or restaurant field interests you, send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope in care of this newspaper, and I'll send you a list of good books on the subject.)

Meat And Potatoes With A Twist

By Cecily Brownstone

AP Newsfeatures Food Editor

Husbands and children are notorious for being meat-and-potatoes people, but that doesn't mean they won't welcome interesting presentations of these favorite foods.

A big success at our house is to take frankfurters and mashed potatoes and give them a new look. There's method to our madness because the franks can be stuffed with the potatoes ahead of dinner time and then popped into the oven at the last minute.

You can of course prepare your own potatoes for the dish, but when you are short of time or energy you may wish to use the instant flaked potatoes that come in two foil envelopes in a 5½-ounce package. In this particular recipe we've added cheese to the instant potatoes, but here are other flavoring suggestions.

1. Instead of mixing the cheese into the potatoes, sprinkle or pat it over the top of the potatoes after they have been stuffed into the frankfurters, then dust with paprika.

2. Omit cheese and add minced chives to the potatoes.

3. Shred green cabbage and pan-fry in a little butter or margarine and a tablespoon of water, then add to the potatoes.

4. Add finely diced green pepper and drained canned pimiento to the potatoes.

5. Spread frankfurters with sweet brown mustard before adding potato stuffing.

6. Top potato-cheese stuffing with fine dry bread crumbs heated in a generous amount of butter.

Potato-Stuffed Frankfurters

Ingredients: 1 envelope (from a 5½-ounce package) instant flaked potatoes, ¼ cup grated sharp cheddar cheese (loosely packed), 8 frankfurters, paprika.

Method: Make up potatoes according to package directions, then mix in cheese. Silt each frankfurter lengthwise but not through the bottom; fill with potato

Doghouse Has All Comforts

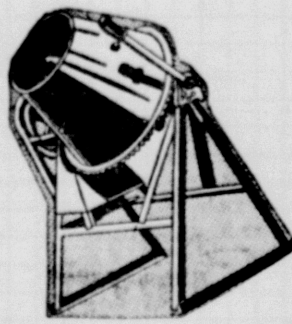

QUEENIE, a spaniel owned by the D. L. Andrews family in Boise, Idaho enjoys the ultimate in modern comfort in her "home." Her doghouse is heated with electricity.

Andrews insulated the kennel and installed a 75-watt radiant heating element in the ceiling. A switch automatically turns on the heat when Queenie enters. Houses for humans also can be heated with electricity at costs comparable with other types of fuel if they are properly insulated. Specifications call for thicknesses of six inches in walls, and two inches or more in floors over unheated areas.

There are about 80 million licensed automobile drivers in the United States.

Plaques Are Easy For Handy Man

IF YOU CAN handle a pair of scissors and cut along a drawn line, you'll have no trouble making these attractive wall plaques. Since there's no fuss and few scraps, you can make these in your living room or kitchen.

No special workshop tools or artistic ability are required. All you do is trace the full-size pattern on sheet aluminum, cut it out with tin snips or scissors. If you use aluminum ordinary household scissors will do the job. If you use a large size, flattened tomato juice can, you'll need tin snips. In either case, be sure to file the rough edges, then paint with a coat of flat black enamel.

Almost before you begin to appreciate your skill as a tinsmith you'll be getting compliments as a metal worker.

With the gift season always "round the corner, why not make several of these? It makes a most welcome gift. With care the pattern can be used to make as many cut-outs as you wish. Make several to keep on hand as gifts, or sell them at a profit.

If you know anyone who needs guidance in finding a hobby, gift wrap the pattern along with materials and you'll give a gift that will be cherished. This pattern is also perfect, the whole gang can pitch in and make a dozen in very little time.

Corner Dusting

IDEAL for getting dust out of corners, is a whiskbroom or paint brush that has been trimmed to a point. Use razor blade or sharp knife for trimming.

Up-To-Date Design Shows In All-Purpose House

THIS DESIGN cannot be dated. Right in step with current architecture, it could just as easily have been created a decade or two ago as it will be stylish for many, many years to come.

Rambling in line, but with purpose, H-798 was designed with the homemaker in mind. Traffic through rooms is minimized and grouping of various centers and single purpose areas is conspicuous by its consistency.

The exterior is particularly striking. Long horizontal lines enhanced by a brick wing wall identifies the home as a true ranch. Decorative openings in the roof overhang add beauty and cast contrasting shadows on the outside while bringing in additional sun-light through the windows.

Approached by a semi-sheltered porch, the front entrance opens into a spacious entry hall. Slate tile seems to broaden this area. The hallway leads to the rear living dining area. The kitchen, however, is accessible through a side door, just inside the front entrance.

Suggesting location on a lake site or a sweeping country site, the living-dining area looks to the back for a view. Triple sectioned picture windows dominate the rear wall and a comfortable ledge rock fireplace occupies the opposite wall.

The kitchen boasts of a corridor arrangement. Note the snack bar with its three-stool sitting. The sink faces the breezeway window. This is thoughtful planning, for where but a breezeway is the logical play area for youngsters. Thus, the homemaker can perform most of her kitchen tasks and still keep an eye on the children.

No less than six closets service the sleeping area. Each of the three bedrooms has a walk-in wardrobe closet. A guest closet is available in the central hall and two linen closets are adjacent to the bath.

This plan conforms to general FHA, VA and Building Code requirements. The plan contains 1,037 square feet, 10,818 cubic feet, and 336 square feet in the garage. Your builder or material supplier can give you the average cost per square or cubic foot in your area.

"Complete Building Plan, including Detail Sheet, Material List, and Specification Guide for Des. No. H-798 may be purchased for $9.75 for first set; two for $18.25; three for $26.25; or four for $33.75. Blasts Demos Attack On Ike HARRISBURG (AP)—George I. Bloom, Republican state chairman, yesterday labeled the Democrats' attack on President Eisenhower at a Washington rally as "a new brand of political immorality."

"The bitter remarks of former President, Mr. Truman, the chief offender about the Eisenhower administration showed complete disregard for fact and courtesy," Bloom said, adding: "It is most unfortunate that an ex-President should speak with contempt about Mr. Eisenhower, who has the confidence and respect of a vast majority of the citizens in our nation. It was an unprecedented exhibition of political immorality and had manners."

Pope Opens Synod Session

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope John XXIII presided Monday at the initial deliberative session of Rome's first diocesan synod, and ecclesiastical council called to consider and deal with modern problems.

The Vatican's buildings flew yellow and white papal banners for the event that brought together 1,300 clergymen, ranging from parish priests of Rome to cardinals.

The synod was called by the Pope a year ago, soon after his election as supreme ruler of the Roman Catholic Church.

Fullmer Lays Full Claim

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Gene Fullmer, the National Boxing Assn. middleweight champion, said Monday he thought the Ray Robinson-Paul Pender bout backed up his claim to 100 per cent of the title.

"I saw the fight on television," said Fullmer. "I don't think either of them would have lasted 10 rounds with me. I was just sorry I wasn't in the ring with Robinson that night. That would have ended all arguments."

Robinson lost his two-state version of the title Friday night on a split decision to Pender, who is recognized in Massachusetts and New York.

Fullmer was here for a sports award dinner.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 6. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Stroud Acme Market Sold For $140,000

SALE of the Acme Supermarket in the Stroud Shopping Center for $140,000 was announced yesterday.

Local attorneys said the deal apparently does not affect the lease of American Stores Co., which operates Acme.

The supermarket was sold by Japenex Co., Inc., Philadelphia, to Stroudnew Realty Corp., of 12 E. 41st St., New York City, according to the deed filed in the office of Mrs. Jeannette F. Batory, Monroe County register and recorder.

In another deed filed yesterday, six lots in Coolbaugh Township were transferred from Pocono Summit Lakes, Inc., to Frances A. Connolly, Jamaica, Long Island, N. Y.

Montgomery Goes To Alps

LONDON (AP)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery went to Switzerland yesterday to do some thinking in the Alps.

"I am going up to the top of a mountain, where I will sit and think for a month," he told reporters at London Airport. "I must think carefully. I shall be traveling a lot this year and speaking to many people."

More Saddle Horses Now Than In 1900, Rotary Told

NEWFOUNDLAND—"There are more saddle horses in this country now than there were in 1900, and more people are riding, going to races and betting on horses," Ted Ash, of "Timbertop," South Sterling, told members of the Rotary Club during the meeting at Green's Restaurant.

The speaker displayed several bits used, and noted that 80% of the people who ride don't know how to direct a horse, never look in its mouth to see what the bit is like, and consequently don't know what to do. He also talked on the speed with which modern living is paced, developing his theme through the electric, electronic and atomic ages.

Carter's New Bowling Glove Distributes Weight Of Ball

THUMB SAVER: Don Carter, right, talks about his new glove to Bill Golembiewski, the Detroit bowler he nipped in a close finish for the world's match game title in Chicago.

By Edward Kitch
CHICAGO (AP) — Don Carter, noted as a strong finisher, had a 279 high tournament game.

"In the 1952 All-Star tournament, I was 47th in the semi-finals with 12 games to go," he said. "I had two big 1300's — 1384 and 1352 — and finished third in qualifying rounds and eventually won the tournament."

The bane of the blistered thumb solved, Carter, 33, St. Louis, edged Billy Golembiewski of Detroit from first place after a struggle from 67th place during qualifying rounds.

Not Happy
"I didn't feel happy at that time, but of course I didn't give up," he said.

Carter has been bowler of the year four times. He won the first world crown three years ago and was runner-up in 1958.

Carter won 38½ games and lost 25½, with a Peterson point total of 320.32. Golembiewski won 38 and lost 26 games for 316.27 points.

Wilt Ups Lead Over Twyman
NEW YORK (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain, Philadelphia's sensational rookie, has taken a commanding lead over Cincinnati's Jack Twyman in the National Basketball Assn. scoring race.

The Warriors' giant scored 58 points against Detroit Monday night, boosting his season total to 1,739. He has a 37.8 average for 46 games. Twyman has collected 1,605 points in 52 games for a 30.9 average.

Buffalo Bills Sign Joe Pepe
BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — The Buffalo Bills of the American Football League Tuesday signed their 30th player — Bob Pepe, a 6-2, 230-pound, end from North Carolina State.

Horvath Takes NHL Puck Lead
MONTREAL (AP) — Bronco Horvath of the Boston Bruins has regained sole possession of the National Hockey League scoring lead, but he apparently faces a stiff challenge from Montreal's Jean Beliveau.

The weekly statistics released Tuesday showed Horvath with 62 points. Beliveau is second with 60 and Bobby Hull of Chicago third with 59. Horvath collected seven points on three goals and four assists in last week's games. Beliveau, however, picked up eight points on four goals and as many assists. Hull gained four points.

Carolina State, Pepe, a 1957 graduate, played one year of Canadian football, then returned to NC State as an assistant coach in 1959.

U.S. Arrives At Strange Public Stage

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

THE United States, with its democratic institutions based on the best informed populace in the world, has arrived at a strange stage where the public cannot participate intelligently in decisions regarding one of the most fateful issues in its history.

That issue involves the general defense posture, the size of the military establishment, and the relative emphasis on its various branches.

The public can therefore be excused for nervousness when the experts upon whom it must depend are unable to agree.

Not So Handicapped

However, while the public may not be fitted to pass on the relation between bombers and missiles, between submarine-based Polaris and traditional military bases abroad, it is not so handicapped regarding the attitudes it wants the nation to assume.

This matter of attitude has come to the fore in the past few days because of a statement which Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates Jr. seemed to make, although it now appears to have sounded differently from what he intended.

At any rate, it brought up a question which has been involved in the defense posture at all times. Shall the United States be influenced in its defense planning by what its officials believe to be the intent of the Soviet Union with regard to war? Or shall the planning be based on a determination to guard against the last outside chance of what the U.S.S.R. might be able to do?

The problem arises because military preparedness, so vital when needed, is so wasteful when not needed and is so detrimental to the constructive aims of a safe economy at home and an expanding economy abroad.

Senate Approves Unit Members

HARRISBURG (AP)—Members of two newly created agencies—the State Harness Racing Commission and the Board of Motion Picture Control—were approved unanimously by the Senate Tuesday.

Members of the commission to supervise pari-mutuel betting at harness race meets were named Monday by Gov. David L. Lawrence and rushed through the Senate without opposition.

Named chairman of the board was Lawrence B. Sheppard, Hanover, Republican. Commission members are Atty. Martin J. Cusick, Shippensburg, Republican; and Edward J. Kane, Philadelphia, both Democrats.

Approved as members of the motion picture board were Peter Dana, Pittsburgh; Ira C. Sassaman, Hummelstown; and Mrs. Mae M. Bergin, Philadelphia.

Finch Trial Is Recessed Due To Witness' Illness

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Finch murder trial has been recessed until Monday because of the illness of a witness, after a legal battle Tuesday over a Swedish servant girl's letter to her mother.

By Dial Torgerson

The girl was a maid in the home of Barbara Jean Finch, who was beaten and shot to death last July 18.

On Jan. 25, Marie Anne Lidholm wrote her mother in Gothenburg, Sweden: "During the night Dr. Finch tried to kill Mrs. Finch. Mrs. Finch told me everything in the morning."

Dr. R. Bernard Finch and his pretty paramour, Carole Treggoff, are charged with murder and conspiracy in her death.

The doctor's attorney fought admission of the letter as evidence. Finally the court ruled that only a portion of the translated letter should be admitted. It read: "He (Dr. Finch) told her if she didn't take everything back about the divorce he had a man in Las Vegas whom he would pay thousands of dollars to kill her."

Divorce Suit Pending

Mrs. Finch, 36-year-old socialite, had a divorce suit pending against the handsome doctor.

The prosecutor contends Finch, 42, and Miss Treggoff, 23, plotted the death of Mrs. Finch so they could wed without sharing community property with her.

John Patrick Cody, a convict from Minneapolis, Minn., testified last week he had been paid $1,000 by Finch and Miss Treggoff in Las Vegas, Nev., to kill the doctor's wife. He said he took the money but had no intention of killing the woman.

The witness whose illness forced the trial's delay was Judge Herbert H. Miller of Citrus Municipal Court in West Covina, who has pneumonia.

It was in his court that Finch was ordered held to answer for murder and where Carole was arrested on the same charge.

2 Documents For 2 Parties

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate-House Economic Committee came up Tuesday with two campaign documents—one for the Democrats and one for the Republicans.

The committee's majority report, signed by Democrats, deplored almost every economic action taken by the Eisenhower administration since it went into office seven years ago.

The Democrats said critically that the gross national products had climbed 45 per cent yearly during the six years of the Truman administration but had been stunted to a growth of 2.3 per cent annually since 1953.

In reply, the Republicans making up the committee minority said the opposition had juggled dates and figures to make everything seem as black as possible for the GOP and as good as possible for the Democrats.

The Republicans complained that the Truman-era figures used by the majority had covered the booming days after World War II and much of the high-spending Korean War period.

President Eisenhower, in a brief discussion at his news conference Tuesday morning, complained that the committee had issued its report without holding hearings on the economic message he sent to Congress last week. Always before, he said, it had been the practice to hold hearings.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market, overcoming an early slump Tuesday, showed flashes of strength and closed with an irregular price pattern.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 7 to 639.34. Volume rose to 3,000,000 shares from 2,700,000 Monday and the largest since 3,100,000 shares were traded Jan. 19 which was the last previous day turnover amounted to three million shares or better.

Brokers were inclined to regard the performance as chiefly "technical." One observed that persistent selling of auto shares seemed to have ended and this helped in the rise.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 20 cents to $221.50 with industrials up 30 cents, rails down 70 cents and industrials up 40 cents.

Of 1,204 issues traded, losers outnumbered gainers by 496 to 480. New highs for 1959-60 totaled 5 and new lows 40.

American Stock Exchange prices were irregular. Volume was 1,000,000 shares compared with 1,200,000 Monday. Silver Creek production was the active leader, dropping 1/4 to 1 1/4.

Corporate bonds declined on expanded turnover. U.S. government bonds were steady. Dealings were quiet. Volume rose to $6,200,000 par value on the big board from $5,310,000 Monday.

Sees Revision Of Taxes Overdue

WASHINGTON (AP)—As Rep. John A. LaFore Jr., (R-Pa.) sees it, tax revision is overdue.

Expressing his views in a talk with a newsmen, the junior member of the House Ways and Means Committee said "there are a great many inequities in our tax structure. They should be eliminated wherever possible."

LaFore is successor on the committee to the late Rep. Richard M. Simpson. Simpson, too, favored tax reduction, a flat, across the board reduction. But his proposal lost out even though Simpson was the ranking Republican on Ways and Means. All the same, it is still being talked about.

LaFore favors a plan which would provide a sliding scale reduction over five years.

"We are getting to the point where taxes are stifling incentive," he asserted. "However, we can't do it all at once. I think the sliding scale proposal is a good one, and I hope we can carry it out in some form."

LaFore is successor on the committee to the late Rep. Richard M. Simpson. Simpson, too, favored tax reduction, a flat, across the board reduction. But his proposal lost out even though Simpson was the ranking Republican on Ways and Means. All the same, it is still being talked about.
